Recent Enrollment Demand: High  Medium  Low

Projection for Future Demand: Growing  Stable  Declining

Opportunity Analysis: (Successes, new curriculum development, alternative delivery mechanisms, interdisciplinary strategies, etc.)

Given the wide breath of cross-disciplinary courses that constitute this program and the emerging state-wide TMCs, increased attention to course revisions and assessments will be vital to maintaining a vibrant program. This process can be aided by:

- x A more stable teaching faculty (particularly in Anthropology)
- x A more strategic use of online offerings, especially given the reorganization of IVC Distance Education protocols. This would provide greater access to course offerings and addresses the needs of students who cannot attend traditional face-to-face classes.
- x Increased training in accessing SLOs and PLOs to identify weak or marginal courses that can be strengthened or dropped from the course offerings.
- x Expansion of the BSS Media Library to provide all disciplines within the major with current state-of-the-art media resources to supplement the instruction.

Summary of Program "Health" Evaluation: (Including consideration of size, score, productivity and quality of outcomes)

The core courses are performing well as demonstrated by the high fill rates (overall). Math, Biology, and Sociology appear to be in high demand as reflected in the huge wait-list generated recently.

There have been 73 Associate Degrees awarded for the major since Fall 2009.

Completion rates average improved since Fall of 2009 from 71% to 88% in Spring 2012.

Success Rates have varied from a low of 60% to a high of 81%. In Spring of 2012 it was 76%.

Overall, this is a stable program that given the opportunities for improvement can raise the completion and success rates.
